Quakerism is almost 400 years old. It's the common name for the Religious Society of Friends.

We don't offer neat creeds or doctrine, though we are rooted in the values above.

All people are welcome and accepted at a Quaker meeting.

Quaker meetings for worship can be held anywhere, at any time. Every meeting begins in silence.

We use our meetings to open ourselves to the wisdom that comes out of stillness. We find that it enriches us and shapes us, individually and collectively.
